

A map of the state of Indiana, outlined in black. The map is divided into numerous counties by thin black lines. Three specific regions are highlighted with semi-transparent colors. A yellow region is located in the northwestern corner of the state, covering parts of Elkhart and Kosciusko counties. A green region is located in the western part of the state, covering parts of Adams, Spencer, and Randolph counties. Another yellow region is located in the central part of the state, covering parts of Elkhart, Kosciusko, and Adams counties.

droughtmonitor.unl.edu

-
- |                                                                                       |                     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------|
|  | 5 Class Degradation |
|  | 4 Class Degradation |
|  | 3 Class Degradation |
|  | 2 Class Degradation |
|  | 1 Class Degradation |
|  | No Change           |
|  | 1 Class Improvement |
|  | 2 Class Improvement |
|  | 3 Class Improvement |
|  | 4 Class Improvement |
|  | 5 Class Improvement |